

WEREWOLVES TAKE OVER

MUSCULAR SHAPESHIFTERS HOWL IN SECOND TWILIGHT FILM

Bronson Pelletier, far right, plays Jared, one of the wolf pack, which also stars Taylor Lautner, centre, in The Twilight Saga: New Moon.

The Twilight Saga: New Moon is set to capture audiences this week with tangled love triangles between its fragile heroine, a massive wolf and a century-old vampire.

"The cast is growing, the wolf pack is introduced in New Moon, and so are the Volturi, so everyone should be looking forward to that," says Bronson Pelletier, who was in Toronto last week with Kellan Lutz (Emmett Cullen), to promote the film, which opens Friday.

"There's a lot more action (in New Moon) and in the love story - the love triangle really starts to surface between Jacob, Bella and Edward," says Pelletier, who plays Jared, one of the Quileute wolf pack.

New Moon, based on Stephenie Meyer's novel of the same name, sees lead vampire Edward Cullen (Robert Pattinson) break things off with his human love, Bella Swan (Kristen Stewart), to protect her from him and his family.

This opens the door for her budding relationship with werewolf Jacob Black (Taylor Lautner).

Having read almost all of Meyer's books in the Twilight saga, Pelletier says screenwriter Melissa Rosenberg keeps the movie true to the novel.

"Melissa did a really good job of keeping the movie very, very similar to the book because the fans out there don't like too much change," he says.

And what can fans expect to see from the wolves in this film?

"We try to portray this tall, dark kind of handsome. Shirts off, kind of muscular, very masculine, powerful characters," Pelletier says.
